Melior Avocats: a new corporate litigation boutique in the heart of Paris

Posté le 20 oct. 2022

Valérie Morales and Adeline Leclerc have joined forces to open Melior Avocats: a corporate litigation boutique dedicated to providing made-to-measure services to a prestige clientele.

Made-to-measure services for clients looking for more tightly focused representation: this is the value proposition of the French capital's latest corporate-litigation firm, founded recently by Valérie Morales and Adeline Leclerc.

The two forged a strong bond in the five years they worked together at Marvell Avocats from when Adeline Leclerc joined the corporate litigation team, a practice created and run by Valérie Morales since 2005 until earlier this year.

While at their former firm, the pair developed a strong personal and professional relationship, gaining a reputation for rigorous attention to detail and a high degree of commitment. By opening Melior Avocats, the pair hope to unlock their potential to handle stimulating cases and already feel a newfound freedom and joy in doing so.

Striving to be the best

The founders want their firm to make a lasting impression on the French legal scene, which is why they came up with an original name, one which evokes the French word for the best (le meilleur), or "striving to be the best," in the words of Morales. And with one eye on their future colleagues, the two women wanted to come up with a name that was at once neutral and dynamic.

And while Valérie and Adeline quickly ruled out using their full family names, the eagle-eyed will have noticed that the name of the firm contains each of their initials. And the symbolism of opening their firm on Bastille Day is not lost on the founders either.

A firm dedicated to the prevention and successful resolution of corporate litigation, Melior Avocats offers, “a made-to-measure service with the agility to both meet the specific needs of the client and take a big-picture approach,” explained Valérie Morales in an interview the partners gave to Leaders League.

Loyal clientele

“We are delighted that our existing clients have decided to follow us to Melior Avocats,” stated Adeline Leclerc, “and we fully intend to honor the trust they have placed in us.” In order to do this, the duo intends to develop their marquee practices: criminal business law, corporate finance litigation, commercial disputes and business law.

“The objective is not to turn into a full-service firm but, rather, to be a boutique outfit that offers top level service, customized advice and regular follow up,” remarked Morales.

The positive reception Melior Avocats has received since opening its doors on rue de la Castellane, coupled with an increasing volume of work, means that Melior will shortly be adding new members to its legal team.

As the Adeline and Valérie pride themselves on delivering precision services, the partners don't hesitate to refer their clients to specialists in their network, whose work they know and respect. “Looking further ahead, we want to expand our level of international activity, doing so with partners we trust to bring the same level of service to our clients,” added Leclerc.

Companies, holdings, family offices, clients both old and new, foreign and French... they will all be pampered, according to the founders. For Melior Avocats, it seems, the best is yet to come.
